

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method and system for universal and transparent access to resources residing on heterogeneous networks. A universal transparent identifier is associated with desired resources residing on the heterogeneous networks. A universal 5 resource resolving network is deployed within each heterogeneous network. The resolving network functions to resolve universal resource identifiers and initiate a communications session with the desired resource.